Analyst note

Payhawk is demonstrating aggressive strategic growth, marked by significant European expansion into the Polish market and continued traction with French companies. Concurrently, the company is enhancing its AI-native spend management platform through a new partnership with Rillet and exploring innovative product features for direct data querying. These developments, coupled with active hiring and attendance at a fundraising event, indicate a clear intent for continued scaling and potential future capital raise to support its ambitious roadmap.

Worth asking in the meeting

- New Partnership (Sep 2026): what is behind it, and what comes next?
- The team grew +41% since Jun 2024; which roles matter most now?
- 13 roles posted in the last month: where is the growth going?
- The last funding round was Feb 2022; what is it being spent on, and when is the next one?
- 8 offices: which market is the priority this year?
- Who else are they evaluating, and what would make them switch?

How this report was made

A dated record, not a database dump

BounceWatch reads company websites, job boards, LinkedIn, news and public filings, and keeps every move it finds with the date it happened: a launch, a hire, a partnership, a round, an office. Signals in this report cover the last 90 days.

A sample, not re-checked

This sample shows data as each company was last checked. A bought report scans every company again on the day it is ordered.

Every figure has a date

Team size comes from LinkedIn, web visits are monthly third-party estimates and can trail the report by months; where it matters, the month is printed beside the number. A dash means nothing was published.

What it does not say

No personal data and no private sources. Figures are as each company publishes them; funding totals and currencies are as announced. Use it to see who is moving, then ask them.

KEEP WATCHING

Want to know the day one of these companies moves?
